ny Visited Soon After the Murder of Leon-ard One of its Barrels Recently Used.

" If the police can weaven network about me, let them do it. I'll tell them nothing," said John Kenny, the Brooklyn bill poster, late on Tuesday night, as he was taken to a cell in the Washington street police station, under accusation of murdering John Leonard, a car driver, after robbing him. Inspector Jewett had for over an hour talked to him in the pres-fore Justice Walsh yesterday, but they were kept apart. Each was accused of murder and highway robbery. The charge against Kenny was based upon an affidavit made by Peter Nolan, who was told by Kenny on Tuesday morning to see Metiovern and teil him that a man had been killed on Duffield street, and to put "that thing" (the watch they had sicien from Leonard) away. The charge against McGovern was based upon an affidavit made by Jeremiah, Sullivan, who pawned Leonard's watch after receiving it from McGovern. Kenny and McGovern were both heid for examination on Monday. Sullivan, who is accused of having received stolen goods, was sent to jail, and Nolan, who is held as a witness, was sent to jail, and Nolan, who is held as a witness, was sent to jail, where they were taken for the Rogues Gallery, and then they were taken to flay mond Street Jail, where they were locked the order of the House Gallery, and then they were taken to flay mond Street Jail, where they were locked the order of many indignant remarks. He has object of many indignant remarks. He has borne the reputation a long time of being a desperate man, ready for any crime, and now that he is not able to terrify any one, he is spoken of in harsh terms.

Inspector Jewett yesterday devoted his time to clearing up the case in detail, and particularly to scarching for the pistol. Kenny's house and shop and stables were searched in vain for the weapon. The Inspector learned yesterday afterioon that, between 1 A. M. and i 30 A. M. on Tuesday morning, Kenny was in Bernard Midfrath's saloon at Fulton street and Fulton place, and that he spent about ten minutes of the time there in an apartment off the rear room. A plumber was set to work to see if the pistol, and singers soon came in contact with motal. He drew it out, and it proved to be the four-barrelled pistol for which he was so anxiously searching. The pistol is undoubted back. He felt exretully back of the familiar, and his fingers soon came in contact with motal. He drew it out, and it proved to be the Kenny wantonly killed him, in order, as he thought, to save himself further trouble.

LUCIE EMILIE LAURENT'S STORY.

Lucie Emilie Laurent, who has been in the funatic asylum on Blackwell's Island since the 14th of July last, having been placed there through proceedings instituted by her brother to have her declared insane, was yesterday before a Sheriff's jury and commissioners appointed by the Supreme Court to have the question of her mental condition inquired into, Dr. Dent of the lunatic asylum expressed the opinion that Miss Laurent was affected with epileptic mania and was still of unsound mind, though she had of late not shown any with epileptic mania and was still of unsound mind though she had of late not shown any decided insane symptoms. Police Sergeant Croker, who had known Miss Laurent for a number of years testified that in his opinion she was sane, and that the only occasion when she showed mental excitement was a short time before being sent to the asylum, when also complained that her brother was attempting to take from her her property. Ongoing to Brooklyn and making inquiry he found that her statements were correct. Miss Laurent was then called to the witness stand, upon a general request from the jury, and answered intelligently questions asked by the jurors and by the commissioners. She said that at the time she was taken to Blackwell's Island she resided in Thirteenth street, and that her brother took her to a house in Thompson street, where a man came who, her brother said was a dector. They went out of the room, and then her brother came back with some powders, which he insisted she must take. She was airaid of him, and took them. After that he made her sign a power of attorney under which he now manages her property. He had for a long time persecuted her for money, and she had given him various sums, and finally gave him $500 to let her alone. Her property, which amounted to about $14,000, she had received from her father. The brother had mortgaged this property for $1,500.

A number of physicians were present, ready to testify that in their opinion Miss Laurent was sone; but upon the general request of the jurors the case was submitted to them without further testimony, and after a brief consultation, they returned a verdict that Miss Laurent was of sound mind.

LYNCHING IN DAKOTA.

A Negro Thrown from a Bridge at the End of Twenty Feet of Rope.

GRAND FORKS, Dak., Oct. 25.—Charles Thurber, the colored man who assaulted a fifteen-year-old girl, and, while being pursued, assaulted Mrs. Burbank, wife of a conductor day by a mob, the noose having been placed around his neck by the husband of his latest victim. The first attempt to take the negro from the jail was given up until definite proof brought Conductor Burbank and the party who went to the scene of the crimes. The examination was set for 2 P. M., and before that hour a large crowd had gathered. The Chief of Police quietly turned the prisoner over to the Sheriff and he was quickly haven. ered. The Chief of Poise quietly turned the prisoner over to the Sheriff, and he was quickly taken to the county jail, a very strong structure in the rear of the Court House. When this became known the mob exhibited signs of rage and disappointment, and made a raily for the jail, which was stoutly defended by the officials. But their resistance was useless, as the mob numbered nearly 2,000. The Sheriff was made prisoner, and the keys to the outside doors secured. The inside doors were then quickly battered down and the negro dragged out. A rope was placed about his neck, and the cowering brute hurried to the river and out upon the railroad bridge. The crowd called for Conductor Burbank, who was soon at the scene, and completed the arrangement of the noose around the negro's neck. The negro was thrown from the bridge at the end of twenty feet of rope, and death was almost instantaneous. A few hours later the rope was cut and the body dropped to the ground, forty feet below.

THE JEANNETTE'S FATAL VOYAGE. Bazenhower's Narrative of the Retreat and the Discovery of Bennett Island.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25,-The examination of Lieut. Danenhower before the Jeannette Board of Inquiry was resumed this morning. In answer to the questions by the Court, witness said that if he had been in command when the Jeannette was abandoned he would have se-lected and fitted out for the retreat the first cutter and the two whaleboats in preference to the ones taken, notwithstanding that the sec-ond whaleboat, which was left behind, was longer than 'the second cutter, which was selected, and therefore much more liable to be

In his rooms a quantity of moulds, dies, metal, acids, and other material for making base coin were captured. A smail basket was filled with trade dollars in a partly finished state. The Government detectives say that the prisoner supplied wholesale dealers with his spurious coin.

He is the owner of a team of fast horses and a wagon, which he stables at Seventh avenue and 117th street. When he had coin to sell, his plan was to drive to his residence, where his wife would meet him and throw a package in the back part of his wagon. He would take the package from the wagon and walk away. The payment formed another transaction.

This opera always commends itself to the popular sympathy by reason of the nobility of its theme—a story of heroism which is capable of kindling the admiration of the people of every nation and of all ages. This is the more certain to be the case where the characters are assumed by actors who have something heroic and manly in their methods, which is eminently true of Signors Mierzwinski, Galassi, and Monti, who are the representatives of three of the chief characters in this opera.

Signor Mierzwinski repeated his triumph of last week, singing with magnificent force and great beauty of tone. It is evident that this artist will retain permanently the high place that he has won for himself in the public esteem, because he has gained it through the clear, even timbre of his voice, enhanced by an admirable method, and by much dignity of manner and grace of gesture.

There is something notably akin, from an artistic point of view, in the style of Galassi and Mierzwinski. Both produce their effects in the same legitimate manner, and in both the constitution of the course of the c open tone.

The chorus was very efficient, especially in impressive scene of the meeting of the Cantons. On the whole, the representation of this opera is as fine a one a even the most fastidious can reasonably hope or expect to hear. It will be repeated on the Saturday matince.

W. E. CHANDLER'S METHODS.

Ex-Senator Wadleigh's Revolt Against the Ticket in New Hampehire. KEENE, N. H., Oct. 25 .- Ex-United States Senator Wadleigh, at a large Republican meeting here to-night, denounced in unmeasured terms the character and methods of Mr. Hale, the Republican candidate for Governor, and Wm. E. Chandler. He said: "We see a shrewd, cunning speculator, whose path to wealth is strewn with depraved and ruined victims; whose nomination for the chief magistracy of this Commonwealth has been obtained by bribery; a Washington lobbyist, who in a few years has mysteriously gathered up the most collossal fortune in our whole State, who is a momber of the Cabinet and a candidate for United States Senator, making a great naval demonstration to control our State Convention. Delegates chosen to vote against Mr. Hale voted for him, and went to their homes boasting of the magnitude of their bribes. There is no State in the Union where political corruption has waxed stronger."

Of Mr. Hale's business record Senator Wadleigh said: "His speculations have carried sorrow and ruin into many a happy household. He encouraged honest laborers and farmers to trust the Manchester and Keene Railroad when he knew it was entirely worthless. They were swindled, but from that enterprise and their impoverishment he will clear many thousands of dollars. He it was who secretly engineered and profited by the War Eagle and Tremont mining frauds, notorious in Boston, where his business headquarters really are."

Of Secretary Chandler's methods Mr. Wadleigh said:

I remember that very soon after my first vote against the District Mars. up the most collossal fortune in our whole knew it would, and hence it came to Portsmouth at that time.

This is a fine illustration of the most prominent feature in Mr. Chandler's character—his duplicity. It reminds me of many episodes in his pass life. He never walks in a straight path. President Athur may have occasion to note this remarkable trait of Mr. Chandler some time, as I believe he is playing into the hands of Mr. Blaino.
The nomination of Mr. Haise was fragrant insult to the party-where most constitution of the party-where most constitution in the party-where most constitution in the party-where most constitution in the party-where most constitution of the party-where most constitution in the party who brought the navy to his aid. And how will you like that? Do you wish the lobbyist of Jay Gould and John Rosch to legislate for your interests. Do you wish to see him in the Navy Department for two years after his election to the Senate, sure of his seat and freed from restraint?

In conclusion the sucaker favored a hearty.

Gen. Curtis was a receiver and a trustee, and whether Congress had a right to prohibit his giving money for political purposes or not, it certainly had a right to prohibit his receiving it."

THE CANVASS IN INDIANA.

Prospects of a Sweeping Bemocratic Victory
—Guins of Congressmen Predicted.

Indianapolis, Oct. 25.—In spite of the efforts of the Republican leaders in Indiana, the prohibition question seems to be the only issue in the campaign. The result is that nearly the entire German vote in the State will be cast on the Democratic side, and there are but few on account of their temperance sentiments. The indications now are that the Democrats on account of their temperance sentiments. The indications now are that the Democrats will not only earry the State by a handsome majority, but gain three, if not four members of Congress, and elect a majority in both branches of the Legislature. The Germans are more anxious that the Legislature should be carried than the State teket, so that the proposed prohibitory amendment should be strangled in its infancy. The Democrats are almost certain to carry sixty out of the 100 members of the House; but the task is more difficult in the Senate. That body is composed of fifty members; fourteen Republicans and nine Democrats hold over from 1880. It is believed, however, that the Democrats will carry seventeen Senatorial districts, which will give them the Senate. The Senators elected this year will hold their offices for four years, which will allow them to vote for a United States Senator in 1885.

Gov. Hendricks has been compelled to withdraw from his appointments on account of rheumatism in the foot, which confines him to his room. Voorhees, McDonald, Gray, Gooding, Coffroth, and the other Democratic leaders and orators are speaking daily to large crowds. There are no imported speakers on the stump. The heavy German vote is in the large cities, like Indianapois, Lafayette, Terra Haute, and Evansville. These cities have heretofore gone Republicans have been enabled to elect their candidates for Congress. Each of the cities named is in a different district, and thus it will be seen that if they flop over to the Democratic side, and it looks that way now, there will be a gain of four Congressmen for the Democratic side, and it looks that way now, there will be a gain of four Congressmen for the Democratic side, and it looks that way now, there will be a gain of four Congressmen for the Democratic side, and it looks that way now, there will be a gain of four Congressmen for the Democratic side, and it looks that way now, there will be a gain of four Congressmen for the Democratic side, and it looks that way now, there

A HANDSOME YANKEE SHIP. One of the Largest of Sailing Vessels-The American Carrying Trade Reviving.

Wooden shipbullding down East is reported to be gradually reviving, and several large vessels have recently been turned out at Bath, Thomaston, and other ports in Maine. The largest sailing vessel in this port to-day is the ship Cyrus Wakefield, built at Thomaston, and just arrived here. She has already secured a charter, and is loading for San Francisco at Pier 19, East River. She is 2,013 tons register, and carries about 3,000 tons dead weight. She is about 265 feet long over all, 44 feet beam, and draws, when loaded about 24 feet. Her hand-some medium elipper model, lofty spars and tophamper, and snowy canvas, already bent for Sam Watts, and is commanded by Cant. Bam Watts, and is commanded by Cant. Bam Watts, and is commanded by Cant. B. J. Hodgman, with Gardiner Emmerton for first officer. Both have been to sea the best part of their lives, and are true blue Yankee sailors.

The Cyrus Wakefeld has two decks and a spar deck, and is built of white oak, hackmetack, hard pine, &c. She is provided with Providence power windlasses, and has three power capstans on the forecastle. The accommodations for the crew show a yast improvement over those of old times. The forecastle is roomy, well lighted, and provided with a large stove. Aft in the same house are the sail room, carpenter's shop, gailey, cook's room, and boys' room. Aft of the mainmast another house on the spar deck contains the Captain's and first and second officers' quarters, four spare staterooms, bathroom, closet, pantries, dispensary, steward's quarters, &c. The liberial amount of room aboard is in marked contrast to the cut up and cranped quarters of some ocean steamers, and would be decidedly attractive to a traveller to whom time is no object. Mr. Mayer discovered, a few moments afterward that a wailet containing $2.200 in money was missing from an inside pocket of his coat. The police are searching for the thieves.

Indeed, this differs materially in appearance from the one seen by the New York Yacht Club on their annual cruise, as well as by the Cutty-hunk, Undine, and other fishing clubs this summer. Several fishermen inspected the sea serpent yesterday. It was enclosed in a big wooden box. It is 12% feet long and about 18 inches in diameter amidships. Its tail is about the size of that of a badly scared Tom eat, Its neck arches gracefully up like a swan's, but it has a head a good deal like that of a 6-year-old bull, with eyes as big as saucers close down to the nostris. Two short horns, not unlike an Alderney's, project from the massive forehead, and the mouth, which is wide open, is filled with big teeth badly in need of filling. There are small spikes along the body.

The exhibitor said the creature was caught in the Baltic Sea two years ago by Capt, Gray, and was embalmed by Prof. Johnson of London. It was first caught wich a hook, and a hard fight ensued, the creature emitting loud cries in its struggles to prevent capture. A famous Fulton market ichthyologist is organizing a body of distinguished savants to make a scientific inspection of this wonder, as many claim that any sea serpent under 100 feet is the established length of all reputable sea serpents.

"Maybe he won't understand," suggested Commissioner Voorhis, fearful of the delay that it is said the bookkeeper sometimes causes.

"Oh, don't you fear," responded President Laimbeer,
"he understands all about it. The trouble is he don't make it clear to us. He has got us like this," and here the President held up his hand as if he were dangling the Board by an unseen string. Then he shut one eye and recnarked, "That's what's the matter."

Fitteen minutes passed, another messenger was despatched to the bookkeeper, and finally Mr. Whitney walked in with one hand playing with his watch chain.

"Well, how about that lease!" asked Mr. Voorhis.
"It is not ready yet. It was sent back to the Corporation Connsel to be redrafted," answered Mr. Whitney.

AT LAST, A SEA SERPENT.

Cent. Pac. 60% 50% Northwest, pf. 163% 16% Chic, & All. 141 142 Ont. & Western. 20% 27. Onto With Herns and Spikes Now on Exhibition on the Harlem River.

Those who were under the impression that there is, or has been, only one sea serpent are now shown to have been in error. A sea serpent with the highest references as to respectability is on exhibition on the Harlem River. It is dead, and has been so two years, according to the documents, so that the sea serpent that provoked such rivalry in narrative at the watering places last summer cannot be the same. Indeed, this differs materially in appearance from the case sea by the case sea b

Wednesday, Oct. 25,
The stock market was quite active during the early hours, but the course of prices was variable and irregular and the tone of the speculation quite unsettled. There was a decline of 2% in Denver and Rio Grande. The coal shares were somewhat depressed. New York Chicago and St. Louis advanced, and was pretty well supported. Between noon and 2? M. the whole market was buoyant, and Canada Southern, Denver and Rio Grande, Michigan Contral, and Texas and Pacific were quite active, but generally the business was not large. In the last hour prices again became variable, but the final close was firm. The more important changes for the day were as follows: Advanced—Canada Southern, 1%; Michigan Central, %; Northern Pacific common, 1; Omaha common, %; Wabash and Pacific preferred, 2%; Rochester and Pittsburgh, M. Declined—Denver and Rio Grande, 1%; Louisville and Mashville, %; Northern Pacific preferred, %; Wabash and Pacific common, %.

Governments were dull and State bonds Governments were dull and State bonds weak. Railroad bonds were fairly active, but the changes in prices were in nearly all cases toward lower figures, except some recovery in the elevated railroad issues.
